Art Unit: 2157

1. This action is responsive to the communication filed June 13, 2003. In response to the restriction requirement dated May 13, 2003, The applicant elected with traverse Group I claims 1-19, 27-32. The applicant is requested to cancel claims 18-26 in response to this office action. Claims 1-19, 27-32 are considered in this action. Claims 1-19, 27-32 represent system and method for Re-Directing Requests from Browsers for communication over Non-IP based networks.

2. The disclosure is objected to because of the following informalities:

Pages 1 and 2 of the specification are missing updated application information.
Appropriate correction is required.

3. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless -

(e) the invention was described in a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention thereof by the applicant for patent, or on an international application by another who has fulfilled the requirements of paragraphs (1), (2), and (4) of section 371(c) of this title before the invention thereof by the applicant for patent.

The changes made to 35 U.S.C. 102(e) by the American Inventors Protection Act of 1999 (AIPA) do not apply to the examination of this application as the application being examined was not (1) filed on or after November 29, 2000, or (2) voluntarily published under 35 U.S.C. 122(b). Therefore, this application is examined under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) prior to the amendment by the AIPA (pre-AIPA 35 U.S.C. 102(e)).

4. Claims 1, 4-13, 15-19, and 27-32 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as being anticipated by Gupta et al., U.S. Patent No. 6,374,305.

Gupta teaches the invention as claimed including a WEB application interface system in a mobile based client server system (see abstract).

As to claim 1, Gupta teaches a method of deploying content to client applications, comprising:

accepting inbound messages from a client application running on a client device via a proxy IP/port (see figs. 1-2; col. 4-5, see proxy 34);

packaging the inbound messages into an internal message format with an HTTP redirector (see col. 4-5, Gupta discloses that a messages are redirected through the proxy 34);

forwarding the packaged message to a back-end server; receiving a response from a web server (see col. 5, lines 30-45, Gupta discloses that a request is forwarded by the server 22 to the web server 44);

packaging the response into the internal message format with the back-end server and forwarding the response to the HTTP redirector (see figs. 2-3; col. 4, Gupta discloses that WEB agent 42 packs the response back to the internal message format which is forwarded by the message handler 42 to the client system); and transferring the response to the client application running on the client device via the proxy IP/port (see figs. 1-3; col. 5-6).

As to claim 4, Gupta teaches the method according to claim 1 wherein the HTTP redirector acts as a client side proxy (see fig. 2, proxy 34).

As to claim 5, Gupta teaches the method according to claim 1, wherein the HTTP redirector provides compression of the inbound packaged message (see figs. 1-3; col. 4, lines 15-20).

As to claim 6, Gupta teaches the method according to claim 1, wherein the HTTP redirector provides decompression of the response (see col. 4)

As to claim 7, Gupta teaches the method according to claim 1, wherein the HTTP redirector unpacks the packaged response (see col. 4).

Claims 8-13, 15-19, and 27-32 do not teach or define any new limitations above claims 1, 4-7 and therefore are rejected for similar reasons.

5. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains.

Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

6. Claims 2-3, and 14 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Gupta et al., U.S. Patent No. 6,374,305 in view of Aravamudhan et al., U.S. Patent No. 6,563,919 (referred to hereafter as Ara).

Gupta teaches the invention as claimed including a WEB application interface system in a mobile based client server system (see abstract).

As to claims 2-3, Gupta teaches the method according to claim 1.

Gupta fails to teach the limitation wherein the HTTP redirector sits on top of a library of mobile service and accesses it to obtain information about a wireless protocols supported by the client device.

However, Ara teaches a gateway cluster having a number of gateways for different types of communication protocols by converting network messages to normalized messages by querying the mobile systems where the messages were generated (see abstract). Ara teaches HTTP redirector sits on top of a library of mobile service (see col. 6, Ara discloses that a unified mobility manager UMM 30 provide a unified hardware for processing and providing responses for various types of mobile communications protocols by providing a unified directory services).

It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time of the invention to modify Gupta by providing a unified directory of services at the agent 42 to provide for multiple protocol translations. One would be motivated to do so to allow for different types of mobile platforms to interact with the system.

Claims 14 does not teach or define any new limitations above claim 2 and therefore is rejected for similar reasons.
